France has beefed up laws to protect consumers' personal data, but the country's measures are still not as tight as those of other major European countries. In Europe, consumer data are to be collected and processed by small business, which suggests more collaboration between the French government and the private sector. Data protection In January 2014, the French government passed the right to be forgotten. This law allows individuals to request the removal of personal data from websites or organizations. Despite the wide scope of the law, it is possible that some websites could be covered by the law, as French law includes some civil 77a5ca646e
