What would an ideal product owner's guide look like? Is there one available? A: I'm using agile for the last 5 years and I did not find a predefined product owner's guide. Perhaps if you want to use the term "product owner" (or "project manager" in its broad sense, that is also used) would be good to start from two documents: Project Portfolio Product Portfolio You can find the latest version on the following link: I worked on the aggregation of the two documents and completed them with some of our customers to help them in the transition from waterfall to agile. Our models are constructed as the following: Business As-Is Model Business As-Seen Model Business As-To Model Once you have created those documents you can start with the acceptance
