STAAD.Pro V8i SS6 V20.07.11.90 License !NEW!

a fee is charged for software licensing to cover our costs of maintaining and supporting the software as well as providing services to meet the needs of our customers. the charge per concurrent user for the software is based on a number of factors including the software product itself, and the number of concurrent users that are being used in the given day. the license server application will show the current charge for each concurrent user. when the user next logs into the software package, the total charge for that day is deducted from their account. when this deduction is complete, the application will present a list of the days remaining, and the total charge. this is used to help our customers plan for their future software purchases. a typical month will see a charge of between $1000 and $3000. in order to support the software, we need to keep the license server up and running. if there are bugs or errors, we fix them immediately, and contact bentley support for help. if the software is not being used, we can turn it off to save on hardware and bandwidth costs. we also have a priority customer support team who can assist customers with their software needs. so, if you have a software issue or question, please don't hesitate to contact us, we're here to help! the license server application is installed on your computer. this software is a client of the server. we do not provide any support for the license server software. we do not provide any help or consultation in using it. if you have an issue or question, please contact bentley support. the license server is an internet-based software application. the software is licensed for a certain number of concurrent users for the entire world. all license usage is billed by the number of concurrent users, regardless of location.

STAAD.Pro V8i SS6 V20.07.11.90 License

with the launch of the new staad.pro model, the v8i series licenses can be purchased either individually or bundled with other applications through our subsidiary, virtuosity. depending on your license type and subscription plan, the cost will vary per region. as an example, a staad.pro advanced license for the u.s. can be purchased in the same way as an individual license through virtuosity and will cost $4,123 usd. this release is being made available for immediate implementation and is supported with a two-year support agreement. as a virtuosity authorized staad.pro partner, we can assist with implementation, training and support. a software license is generally for a single user, however, if you would like to share your license with your team or other users, you can purchase a pack license. if your work process is complex, we recommend the architect pack license for greater efficiency. for a more detailed description of the individual licenses, please contact us. if you are licensed for a perpetual, per-machine or per-user license, you will be able to continue to use the same license across all your machines or users. however, if you would like to share your license with other users, you will need to purchase a pack license. one customer who uses twenty-four licenses at the same time complained that he uses a whopping 20 per cent of all licenses in a month on one day. so, what is being used in the calculation? is it the peak usage for a given day, or the sum of peak usage for all days? if it is the sum, then the peak usage is being used for billing purposes, even if it was only used for one day. is that what bentley thinks?
