Lightroom 5 is perfect for developing RAW images so I am very happy with how the feature is implemented. Of course, if you use any other applications, such as Adobe Camera Raw, you may find many of the new features easier to use. But, if you are new to Lightroom, I am sure you will find the number of new editing options almost overwhelming. The Lightroom 5 update is being met with positive feedback from many users. In fact, besides adding the Guided Edit feature, there are many new features which were not available in Lightroom Classic 7. Some of them include Moving and Rotating Tools as well as the following Smart Tools: Content Aware, Film Scanner, Document Structure Enhancer, Repair Lens Flare, Retouch Eyes, Remove White Patch, Rotate Stills, and Unlock Remote Key. There is also a new Alignment Tag and the Carpathian Mountains. Quality of the raw files you import has also improved. And there's also the new Lens Correction feature (one should really write a separate article about the improvements in this feature alone.) Just as Adobe added a lot of new features and improvements, the new version of Photoshop CC is quite a big step. Using the cursor, you can draw four basic sketches from the palette. These sketches are: Line, Text, Rectangle or Circle, and Ellipse or Oval. After drawing the sketch, you can either select the edge or the center. When you drag the cursor and drop, a horizontal or vertical guide feature comes up. You can also define a scale in the bottom of the interface for special measurements. You can also adjust the color, size, and position of the drawing in your chosen sketch.

The creative world of graphic design depends on a computer running a stable, stable operating system. AVS on MacOSX uses levels, curves, and more to give a graphic designer a powerhouse computer. This means that there is no longer the need to juggle multiple programs at the same time. Multiple graphic design programs can be run in the background, but will not slow down your computer in any way. You can watch a movie, still work on your design, and in any stage you need to break away. Your design software is what will be the CPU or core of your computer. For my money (or the price), no computer is complete without at least 8GB of memory. An 8GB is the minimum you can run AVS on a Mac with all the bells and whistles; however, you will never need it unless you have at least 3GB of memory. If you have more than that, it is probably a waste of money, but it's also useful if you're the more artistic type and find yourself running out of RAM. Again, it's not until you have a skill level in this area that you'll need more than 2-3GB of memory. If you are a beginner or just want to take on the world in graphic design (a long shot at it), 8GB is perfect.
